A New Treatment of a Large and Growing Subject

Underhill on Landlord[¶] Tenant

Embracing the Lease (Its Form, Execution, Construction, Assignment, Surrender and Parties to it), Various kinds of Tenancy Created, Rent and its Incidents. Eviction, Destruction of the Premises, Landlord's Negligence, Duty to Repair, Emblements,
 : : Fixtures, Etc. : :

By H. C. UNDERHILL, of the New York City Bar, Author of "Wills,"
 "Civil Evidence," "Criminal Evidence," Etc.

This book has been in active preparation for eight years, and is the ripened product of an author well and favorably known to the profession, especially by his work on "Wills," 2 Volumes (1901), which, by common consent, is acknowledged to be the authority upon the subject.

The author considers first—The Parties to a Lease, the Form and Execution of the Lease, and the various Forms of the Relation of Landlord and Tenant, which are Recognized by Law. The Attornment of the Tenant, his Possession and the Rent are then considered. Very full treatment is also given to Fraud as grounds for setting aside a Lease, the Use of the Premises, Tenant's Estoppel and Option to Purchase.

The treatment given is concise and to the point, and at the same time is sufficiently full to give all the law. A full line of American and English cases are cited to the date of going to press. Those cases which have been reversed or overruled are noted. Parallel citations are given to the National Reporter System, L. R. A., Trinity Series, Etc.

It is believed that the members of the profession will welcome the book as a useful and a valuable addition to their law libraries.

WILLISTON on the Law Governing Sales of Goods AT COMMON LAW AND UNDER THE UNIFORM SALES ACT

By SAMUEL WILLISTON (Weld Professor of Law in Harvard University), Draftsman of the Uniform Sales Act for the National Conference of Commissioners for Uniform State Laws.

The text of this book contains a logical and coherent statement of the Law of Sales, not a mere digest of the decisions stated without reference to their bearing upon each other. The notes contain not simply fun citations of authorities, but such statements of the facts involved in important cases and such quotations from judicial opinions as to enable the reader to test the author's conclusions by the language and decisions of the courts. The book is by the author of the Sales Act, and furnishes the best guide to the meaning of that Act which is available before it is construed by the courts. The Act has already been passed in Arizona, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Rhode Island, and the passage by other states seems probable. As the Act is in the main a codification of existing Common Law, it seemed appropriate to the design of explaining the meaning of the Act to treat fully the Common Law of Sales. Accordingly, the book treats exhaustively the Law of Sales as it exists where the Sales Act has not been passed. In such jurisdictions the provisions of the Act, though not having the force of a statute, conveniently summarize the Common Law.

The important subject of Sales and Pledges by means of bills of lading and warehouse receipts has been treated with especial fullness, and it is believed that the author's treatment simplifies a somewhat difficult branch of the law. As draftsman for the National Conference of Commissioners for Uniform State Laws, not only of the Sales Act, but of the Warehouse Receipts Act (now passed by ten states, including New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Iowa and Ohio), and of a bill to make uniform the law governing bills of lading, and as counsel for the Committee on Bills of Lading of the American Banker's Association, the author has had exceptional opportunities of discussing with railroad men, warehousemen and bankers, as well as with lawyers and legislators, the practical as well as the aspects of bills of lading and warehouse receipts. The portions of the book devoted to this topic are believed to be of great importance.

The subject of delivery by the buyer and retention of possession by the seller, which has been the subject of many and conflicting decisions, has been treated with greater fullness than in any other work. The law of each state is separately stated, and its decisions fully collected.

Williston on Sales is a large octavo volume, of about 1,400 pages, handsomely bound in canvas. Price $7.50 net, but sent by express, prepaid, on receipt of the amount.

THE CONTROL OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

By WILLIAM M. IVINS and HERBERT DELAVAN MASON, of the New York Bar

In the form of an Annotation of the Public Service Commissions Law of the State of New York, and covering all important American cases whether or not within the scope of the Act, together with the text of the Federal Interstate Commerce Act and the Rapid Transit Act of New York, with elaborate indexes of the same and numerous comparative notes and cross references to parallel provisions in the several Acts.

The book is designed as a working volume, adequately indexed, which brings together, in their relation to the New York Law, all cases decided by our American courts in the matter of the regulation of Public Utilities Corporations. It in fact constitutes an elaborate digest of the entire jurisprudence of the subject.

In one large octavo volume of 1,230 pages, law canvas binding. Price $7.00, delivered on receipt of the amount.

NIMS on the Law of Unfair Business Competition

By HARRY D. NIMS, of the New York Bar.

This book is the first of its kind which deals with the equitable principles applicable to all sorts of unfair methods of competition in business, a division of the law which has been largely developed in the last few years. The extent of the protection which the law now affords and the facility with which this protection may be availed of against the many injuries suffered by manufacturers and merchants at the hands of unscrupulous competitors, is not generally realized.

The volume discusses fully the power of equity to enjoin (without the delays incident to damage suits) the unfair use of names, of goods, of persons, places, partnerships and corporations; the misuse of trade secrets, the copying of the form and shape of manufactured articles, fraudulent trading on the good will of others, unfair imitation of signs, letters, numerals, labels, wrappers, bottles and containers of all kinds; the utterance of false and untrue statements as to credit and as to the quality, source, manufacture, or merit of goods; the fraudulent and unfair, interference with the contracts and business of others by such means as threats; all phases of unfair competition, as decided by the courts within the last few years.

Nims on Unfair Business Competition is a fine octavo volume, bound in buckram. Price, $6.50 net, but delivered by express, prepaid, upon receipt of the amount.

Which Route?

WHEN you have a brief to prepare on a certain narrow point you have to travel over one of three routes to your goal. Which do you take?

The Blazed Trail is still popular with some lawyers. They plunge into a veritable forest of unselected reports of cases from all jurisdictions. There being many branching paths, most of them leading nowhere, they are frequently obliged to retrace their steps. One may arrive after great labor by this route, and find that he has what appears to be a very good brief, but is he sure?

The Stage Coach is much quicker and safer; a road has been laid out and sign posts erected by means of text books, encyclopedia, digests and other variations on the same general plan, which gives no reported cases. The road is rough and the break-downs frequent on this route, but it is a much more satisfactory way of preparing a brief than the tedious hunt through reports without any other aid than that of digests of single sets.

The direct All Rail Route furnished by Lawyers Reports Annotated is the only one by which you go straight to your destination in the shortest possible time. By it you find your exact brief point covered by a note with all the cases from the earliest times analyzed, and one or more late cases reported in full with briefs of counsel. You are saved all the useless search among cases which are of no value, and you cannot be misled by what some author says the law is, as in the L.R.A. note you have enough facts given from each case cited to judge for yourself.

More lawyers use Lawyers Reports Annotated than any other set of reports published.

Send for 600 page Desk Book for Brief Makers and take the trip yourself—if you have not the L.R.A. Digests from which the Desk Book is compiled. 25c will pay transportation.

A 1909 Work on a 1909 Subject

Joyce on Injunctions

by Howard C. Joyce, of New York City

An especially timely work just now when relief is so often sought through injunctions. It states the law as it is TO-DAY, covering the subject fully and emphasizing and amplifying the many unusual points considered during the past few years.

It is the only modern work on the subject, concise yet covering every phase of the law, with every citation to a proposition of law directly in point.

Labor Matters, Strikes, Boycotts, Conspiracies, Monopolies, Contracts in Restraint of Trade, Laws Regulating Rates of Public Service Corporations are treated in their modern aspects. For many new phases of these subjects have been up for judicial interpretation in the past ten years and important decisions have been made.

In No Other Work, we believe, will be found so complete, exhaustive and up to date a Treatment of Live Subjects and New Constructions of particular interest in regard to the law of Injunctions as construed by the courts to-day.

THIRD EDITION

BY GEORGE RICHARDS. L. L. B., M. A.

Enlarged and Rewritten

THIS book is not merely a thorough revision to date; it is wholly rewritten and replated. During its long continued preparation no trouble or expense has been spared to make it complete and convenient. The author has been actively engaged in the practice of insurance law for over thirty-two years, and has at times been lecturer on this subject at the Columbia and New York Law Schools.

CERTAIN SPECIAL FEATURES OF THIS TREATISE.

1. The practical scope and useful contents of several large volumes comprised within the compass and cost of one: (a) concise coarse-print text; (b) voluminous, digested fine-print notes; (c) a mass of case-law construing obsolete forms of policies omitted; (d) recent American and English decisions relating to all forms of modern policies.

2. A thorough consideration, Part I., of general principles, and Part II., of the clauses in sequence of all the policies.

3. The facts of many cases given with unusual fulness coupled with the precise holding of the court. Quotations from opinions, if given, and subsidiary points, relegated to foot notes.

4. Important cases and vexed problems carefully presented and critically examined.

5. Not a digest, but a treatise; the work none of it turned over to subordinates.

6. Origin and reasons for legal doctrines traced and explained; decisions on different branches of insurance law compared and contrasted.

7. An appendix of statutes affecting the contract made up from the original statutes of all the States.

8. An elaborate collection of standard and other policies, special clauses and other forms.

9. An essay on non-concurrent apportionments, and illustrations of the operation of co-insurance clauses by Willis O. Robb, Esq., adjuster of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters.

10. An adjustment in general average by Harrington Putnam, Esq., of the New York Bar, assisted by Messrs Johnson & Higgins, adjusters..

11. An Index, thorough and, so far as deemed desirable, made analytical.

Lewis' Eminent Domain

By JOHN LEWIS, of the Chicago Bar

Author of the Two Previous Editions of This Work

Editor of Sutherland's Damages and Lewis' Sutherland's Statutory Construction

A New Edition of the Standard Authority

This work has been tested for more than twenty years by bench and bar, during which time it has been cited more often than all other works on this subject put together, and has been quoted, approved and followed by the courts of every State in the Union, with the result that the work has had a potent influence in moulding the law upon this subject.

A more thorough, comprehensive and exhaustive treatise on Eminent Domain Power, covering every phase of the subject and all incidental questions growing out of the requisition, use and improvement of property for public purposes, could not be written.

This new edition has been brought down to date and embraces all the new decisions of the last ten years, and all new questions that have arisen in that time. Over 5,000 new cases have been added, making the total number of cases over 18,000.
